SECTION A (READING)

1. Read the passage carefully and then answer the questions.

Penguins are flightless birds that live mostly in the Southern Hemisphere, especially in Antarctica. They have black and white feathers, which help them stay hidden from predators in the water. Penguins are excellent swimmers and use their wings as flippers to move quickly through the ocean.

Penguins eat fish, squid, and small sea creatures. They have a thick layer of fat, called blubber, which keeps them warm in icy waters. Some species, like the Emperor Penguin, can survive in extremely cold temperatures. They huddle together in large groups to keep warm.

Unlike most birds, penguins do not build nests in trees. Instead, they lay their eggs on the ground or keep them on their feet under a flap of skin to protect them from the cold. Both parents take turns keeping the egg warm until it hatches.

Unfortunately, penguins face threats such as climate change, pollution, and a shortage of food due to overfishing. Protecting the environment is important to help penguins survive.
